PENNSYLVANIA

Gov. Shafer says he is confident that presidential candidate George C. Wallace will not receive 10 per cent of the vote in Pennsylvania despite polls showing otherwise.

By Attorney General William C. Sennett's accounting, organized crime is a highly lucrative and fulltime operation in Pennsylvania and the nation—words that the House Democratic minority are playing back at him repeatedly this election year.

A University of Pennsylvania professor, just back from Prague, recalls how he was held for a day and a half by Soviet and Czech authorities.

THE NATION

An attempt to launch the world's most powerful communications satellite fails when the Delta booster rocket shoots off course and is destroyed deliberately two minutes after it blasts away from Cape Kennedy.

The Senate passes a bill to ban interstate mail order sales of rifles and shotguns but rejects proposals for firearms registration and the licensing of owners.

Richard M. Nixon pledges help to the nation's farm laborers but warns them against "crippling an industry that is already in difficulty."

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey appeals to House Democrats to unify behind his candidacy during the election campaign.

THE WORLD

U.S. and North Vietnamese envoys meet head-on in a bitter conflict over the origin, conduct and possible resolution of the Vietnam war.

About 30,000 North Vietnamese troops are reported massed along the demilitarized zone for an offensive. B52s step up raids in the area.

War talk again prevails in the Middle East. The Arabs seem to have abandoned hope for the return of lands captured by Israel.

Mystery develops over the latest Soviet space probe. British scientists insist it passed near the moon; Moscow denies it.

SPORTS

Detroit's pennant clincher last night left an aftermath of ruins around Tiger stadium yesterday morning. Fences and turf repairs were rushed so that the Tigers could meet New York last night, however, the game had to be postponed because of rain.

Coach Toby Shea stated that the Dragons would be ready for Titusville and also praised their fine performance against Franklin. The Boosters meeting which Shea spoke at boasted a crowd of around 250.

Will Grimsley picks the Oklahoma Sooners over Notre Dame this Saturday in college play. Grimsley feels the Irishmen will have their eye on the game with Purdue and miss the Sooners by a mile.

WAHS MERIT SCHOLARSHIP SEMI-FINALISTS

Four Warren Area High School seniors are among some 15,000 of the nation's most intellectually able high school seniors named semifinalists in the 1968-69 National Merit Scholarship Program. The four WAHS seniors are left to right, Marilyn J. Sallack, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Sallack, 13 Orchard st.; Katherine

C. Jordan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Jordan, 110 Redwood st.; James G. Holding, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Holding, 208 Monroe st.; and Robert R. Schorman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Schorman, 392 Buchanan st. (Photo by Mansfield)

Four WAHS Students Named Merit Scholarship Semi-Finalists

Four Warren Area High School students named semifinalists in the National Merit Scholarship Program after qualification testing last February will be among some 15,000 of the nation's most intellectually able high school seniors competing for approximately 3,000 merit scholarships to be awarded next spring.

James G. Holding, Katherine C. Jordan, Marilyn J. Sallack and Robert R. Schorman, were among the highest scorers in the state on the National Merit Scholarship qualifying test.

Constituting less than one percent of the graduating secondary school seniors in the United States, the semifinalists in the Merit Scholarship program show high promise for leadership in their adult careers.

Semifinalists must advance to finalist standing to be considered for Merit Scholarships. To become a finalist the students must receive endorsement of their schools, submit scores from a second examination and provide information about their achievements and interests.

Every semifinalist who becomes a finalist will be considered for one of the 1,000 National Merit $1,000 Scholarships allocated by the state. Many will also be considered for the four-year Merit Scholarship provided by some 400 corporations, foundations, colleges, unions, trusts, professional associations and other organizations and individuals.

Winners of four-year Merit Scholarships may receive up to $1,500 a year for four college years, depending on their individual need. Winners of the National Merit $1,000 scholarships will receive one-time stipends for $1,000 upon enrollment in college.

High school grades, accomplishments, leadership qualities, extracurricular activities and school citizenship for the finalists are evaluated along with test scores, in selecting Merit Scholarship winners.

Names of the winners in the 1968-69 Merit program will be announced by early May 1969. Some 18,700 students have received Merit Scholarships in the 13 annual programs to date. Nearly $60 million in financial assistance to Merit Scholars and their colleges has been expended or committed through the Merit Scholarship program.

The measure extends to rifles and shotguns the ban on interstate mail order sales of rifles and shotguns. It rejected proposals for firearms registration and the licensing of owners.

The vote on passage was 70 to 17.

The bill is similar to a measure passed by the House on July 24. A Senate-House conference committee is expected to have little difficulty in agreeing on a final draft.

The legislation goes only part way to carry out President Johnson's recommendations for tightened firearms controls, sent to Congress following the assassination in early June of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y.

The Senate rejected a series of moves to write in some form of licensing and registration of firearms.

Johnson had strongly urged Congress to include such a provision but both the Senate and House rejected this.

The measure extends to rifles and shotguns the ban on interstate mail order sales provided for handguns in the omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act passed by Congress earlier in the year.

Attempt to Launch Satellite Fails; Rocket Off Course

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — An attempt to launch the world's most powerful communications satellite failed Wednesday night when the Delta booster rocket shot off course and was destroyed deliberately two minutes after it blasted away from Cape Kennedy.

The rocket exploded into a huge fireball high over the Atlantic Ocean when the range safety officer pressed a destruct button that sent a radio signal to set off explosive charges in the vehicle, which was to have put the Atlantic 3 satellite into orbit.

The explosion was clearly visible for several miles along the east central Florida coast.

Destroyed in the fiery explosion was the 632-pound Atlantic 3 satellite, which was five times more powerful than any previous commercial switchboard satellite. It was to have been the first of a series of satellites expected to form a global communications network for public use.

Atlantic 3 was to have been rocketed into stationary orbit 22,300 miles above the equator just east of the coast of Brazil. In that position it was to have been used to relay next month's Olympic games from Mexico City to Europe.

Estimated cost of the satellite was $6 million. The Delta vehicle cost nearly $5 million.

The American Broadcasting

Co., which has Olympic television rights for U.S. domestic usage, plans to relay the signal overland by microwave rather than via satellite. Japanese commercial television networks have arranged to use another satellite already on station over the Pacific Ocean.

Atlantic 3, like earlier commercial communications satellites, is owned by the 63-nation International Satellite Consortium (Intelsat). The consortium now has two less-powerful spacecraft operating over the Atlantic and two over the Pacific.

Mystery Develops Over Latest Soviet Space Probe

LONDON (AP) — Mystery developed over the Soviet Union's latest space probe Wednesday, with British scientists insisting it passed near the moon and the Russians denying it.

Although a spokesman in Moscow dubbed the British report "a canard," Sir Bernard Lovell, director of Britain's Jodrell Bank space station, stuck to his guns.

"There is no doubt whatsoever that a Russian probe was close to the moon at 6 a.m. today," he said. "That is beyond contention and that is absolutely a hard fact. We have looked up the records."

"I don't think the Russians can conceivably deny that," Lovell added. "They may presumably be denying the statement that the probe was returning to earth. I think we shall have to delay further comment on that."

Moscow announced Sunday

the launching of a Zond V probe for space research but has since made no statements about its progress.

But Sir Bernard said: "The whole exercise, the time of the launching and the content of the signals, and the test of the voice transmitter, leaves no doubt whatsoever that this was a probe which was intended to come back."

Lovell first announced that a Soviet spacecraft was close the moon. He said the lunar probe skidded within 1,000 miles of the moon at 5:55 a.m., Greenwich Mean Time—1:55 a.m., EDT. It was transmitting a large amount of data to earth, he said.

As it moved closer, the Russians stabilized the rocket, which had been tumbling, he reported.

Lovell said there was a change in the nature of transmissions and an enormous increase in power.

Senate Passes Bill Banning Mail Order Sales of Guns

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed Wednesday a bill to ban interstate mail order sales of rifles and shotguns. It rejected proposals for firearms registration and the licensing of owners.

The vote on passage was 70 to 17.

The bill is similar to a measure passed by the House on July 24. A Senate-House conference committee is expected to have little difficulty in agreeing on a final draft.

The legislation goes only part way to carry out President Johnson's recommendations for tightened firearms controls, sent to Congress following the assassination in early June of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y.

The Senate rejected a series of moves to write in some form of licensing and registration of firearms.

Johnson had strongly urged Congress to include such a provision but both the Senate and House rejected this.

The measure extends to rifles and shotguns the ban on interstate mail order sales provided for handguns in the omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act passed by Congress earlier in the year.

The Senate bill not only outlaws mail order sales of all firearms but also of ammunition for shotguns, rifles, handguns and other destructive devices.

It also prohibits over-the-counter sales of firearms to non-residents of a state. However, a person in one state may make a purchase in an adjoining state if this is legally permissible in both states.

Sales of rifles and shotguns to persons under 18 years of age would be banned. The anticrime legislation passed earlier bars

War Talk Once Again Pervades Middle East

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Arab nations seem to have abandoned hope of regaining their lost lands from Israel by political means, and war talk once more pervades the Middle East.

A rash of gunfights, ambushes and artillery duels marks the 15-month-old cease-fire lines. Jordanian and Israeli troops exchange fire almost daily across the Jordan River, one of the main points of tension.

The dogged efforts of U.N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring to obtain a peaceful settlement are now virtually ignored by the Arab press. Arab governments apparently have dismissed his mission as a failure.

Aggressive speeches from Egyptian leaders are ominously reminiscent of those which preceded the six-day war of June 5-10, 1967.

Israeli authorities, too, speak of a new round of hostilities.

If war comes "the Arabs will learn once more that we are as powerful as ever before," Prime Minister Levi Eshkol declared this week. His defense minister, Moshe Dayan, warned Israel to be prepared and called for a very heavy investment in arms.

On the other side, President Gamal Abdel Nasser indicated last weekend that Egypt was entering the phase of "retaliation" against Israel. He addressed the 1,700 members of the national congress of his ruling Arab Socialist Union—a meeting which seemed aimed at putting the country on a war footing.

U.S., V.C. Meet Head On In Bitter Conflict Over War

PARIS (AP) — U.S. and North Vietnamese envoys met head-on Wednesday in a bitter conflict over the origin, conduct and possible resolution of the Vietnam war.

During a 3½-hour meeting, Ambassadors Cyrus R. Vance and Xuan Thuy exchanged charges from positions unaltered since May 13 when the talks began.

The deadlock, after the 22nd session, seemed so complete that a spokesman asked U.S. spokesman William Jorden, "What's the point of the talks?"

"There is the hope," Jorden said, "that one of these days there will be a change of mood, a change of position."

There was clearly no change of mood—by either side—in this session.

Vance once again blamed Hanoi for starting the war by "seeking to impose its control by force on the people of South Vietnam."

Xuan Thuy, again said "American acts of war and aggression" are the cause of the conflict.

The U.S. envoy accused the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front of carrying out a "campaign of violence. You have tried to terrorize and coerce the South Vietnamese people into accepting your political system."

Xuan Thuy advanced what he said were "numerous proofs that the United States is piling crime upon crime in both parts of Vietnam."

The North Vietnamese ambassador said discussions of substance could begin only if the United States stopped, without posing any conditions, "all bombardments and other acts of war against the Democratic Republic of Vietnam."

30,000 Reported Massed Along Demilitarized Zone

SAIGON (AP) — Three North Vietnamese divisions with about 30,000 troops are massed along the demilitarized zone for the enemy's annual fall offensive in the northern provinces, U.S. military sources said Wednesday.

If the enemy command follows its practice of the past two years, the once-neutral buffer zone between North and South Vietnam will see heavy fighting later this month and in October as the enemy tries to get the upper hand before the monsoon season reaches its peak in November.

Waves of U.S. B52 bombers have been trying to blunt this expected thrust by blanketing the DMZ with tons of explosives, and periodically venturing into North Vietnam above the six-mile-wide zone.

The sources estimated that 20,000 North Vietnamese soldiers infiltrated South Vietnam during August, across the DMZ or down the Ho Chi Minh trail through Laos and Cambodia.

This is a drop from the previous month's estimate of 30,000 infiltrators, but much higher than the monthly average of 7,000 a year ago.

American spokesmen suggested three possible reasons for the reduction: The enemy command may feel it has brought its units up to full strength; air strikes on infiltration routes, and monsoon floods which slowed traffic along the Ho Chi Minh trail.

Sen. Hastings Assured Nod By Republicans

MAYVILLE — State Senator James F. Hastings of Allegheny is virtually assured of the Republican nomination at Saturday's Congressional District Convention to be held in Alfred.

The assurance of Hastings' nomination to take the Congressional seat formerly held by Senator Charles E. Goodell occurred Wednesday night at a meeting of the Republican County Committee here. The committee unanimously endorsed Hastings for the nomination.

Assemblyman Charles D. Henderson of Hornell is also expected to be nominated, but the votes by the Chautauqua and Cattaraugus County Republican committees are expected to be more than enough to put Hastings over the top.

With Hastings scheduled to get the nomination, the way has now been cleared for Jamestown Assemblyman Jess J. Present to seek the GOP nomination for state senator. The county committee last night endorsed Present for the senatorial nomination, which also will be made Saturday at Alfred State Tech.

Should Present get the senate nomination, county Republicans would then have to name another candidate to replace him on the November ballot. Speculation is running very high the Jamestown Mayor Charles B. Magnuson, is the leading candidate. The mayor's father, Herman, was assemblyman for many years, until his death several years ago.

Jamestown County Supervisor Daniel F. Lincoln is also given an outside chance of being Present's assembly replacement.

Alarm Activated

The late afternoon quiet of downtown Warren was disrupted about 5:15 p.m. Wednesday as a burglar alarm shrieked throughout the area. Seems one of the local police officers, strictly in line of duty, of course, shook the door of James Jewelry on Liberty st., to see if it was open. The door wasn't open, but the burglar alarm was activated by the shake.

Charred Remains Identified

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The charred remains found in a burned-out auto off a rural road have tentatively been identified as those of a man reported missing Sunday on his 61st birthday.

Homicide detectives said the body, found in the back seat of the car Tuesday, was burned beyond recognition.

But the car and license plate, which had been locked in the trunk, were registered to Del. mor S. Wirebaugh of McKeesport, reported missing since Sunday night.

Detectives said the car had been driven about a quarter-mile off the dirt road and through a thicket where it was found.

School Discrimination Difficult To Correct

WASHINGTON (AP) — The woman directing the government's new search for racial discrimination in Northern school systems says the effort will produce little desegregation unless the courts are asked to require it.

"There's going to have to be a lot of litigation fast, or nothing much is going to happen," said Mrs. Ruby Martin, chief of the Office for Civil Rights of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

She said in an interview that the department's first probes into the North indicate that much of the segregation has been perpetuated, if not caused, by decisions of school officials over the years.

But she said proving that school boards are to blame requires long and painstaking digging through school records. With its small staff of investigators — 30 at present — the department can have no early, broad impact on the large-scale segregation in the North, she said.

Mrs. Martin contrasted the situation with the South where, she said, "the evidence is right there sitting up for you" because most Southern school systems traditionally had operated legally separate schools for whites and Negroes.

The Supreme Court ruled in 1954 that school segregation by law is unconstitutional.

In the North, school segregation has grown up with segregated housing. And no court yet has ruled that such school segregation itself is unconstitutional, regardless of the circumstantial cause. But Mrs. Martin said she has hope that such decisions will come.

The Justice Department has just begun its attack on North.

YHS Music Boosters Back Fund Drive

A fund drive to help buy new uniforms for the Youngsville High School marching band will be promoted by the YHS Music Boosters.

At a news and means committee meeting this week it was stated that 100 uniforms will be needed within the next two years to replace the present ones which are now 13 years old. Each uniform costs about $100.

A free public concert will be presented by the band in the school parking lot Oct. 15 to launch the project. The boosters will meet at the school on the third Thursday of each month starting Oct. 17. Parents from Garland, Pittsfield, Youngsville, Grand Valley, Bear Lake and Brokenstraw Township are on the ways and means committee. They will develop a series of fund raising projects to be spread over the current school year, ranging from a smorgasbord to a community calendar. The band members will conduct a bake sale at the coming student council fair.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., the nation's biggest supermarket chain, said Wednesday it would test the use of credit cards in its A&P stores.

Dean Potts, A&P comptroller, said the test would begin Monday in six stores in Ohio and West Virginia.

The credit cards are being sold to A&P by Roberts Enterprises, a credit card concern with headquarters in Wheeling, W. Va.

The Roberts credit cards will permit customers to charge between $200 and $2,000 worth of merchandise without requiring supermarket operators to verify the card.

The cards will expire every 30 days, with the owner automatically receiving a new card in the mail.

A&P said it would wait at least a year to evaluate the effect of the credit cards on sales. A&P operates 4,750 supermarkets coast to coast.

Police Probe Auto Theft

Borough police are looking for a 1963 light green Buick Special stolen at 12:49 a.m. from the owner, John Haggerty Jr., of 18 Crescent Park, Warren.

The Haggertys were awakened by the sound of someone trying to start a car and upon looking out saw their own auto going down the street.

The Buick carries Pennsylvania registration 2L3693.

sales only of handguns to persons under 21.

All firearms dealers, manufacturers and importers would have to be federally licensed under standards set out in the measure.

In general, any person other than a licensee would be prohibited from transporting or receiving in his state of residence any firearms purchased or otherwise obtained by him outside that state.

Penalties for violations range up to 10 years' imprisonment and $10,000 fines.

In knocking down efforts to tie in a registration and licensing provision, the Senate first defeated 55 to 31 an amendment by Sen. Joseph Tydings, D-Md. It would have required the registration of all guns and the licensing of their owners.

Another approach by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., failed by a 48-35 vote. His amendment would have required that after Dec. 31, 1970, no federal licenses for firearms dealers and manufacturers would be issued in states that failed to establish a registration system meeting federal standards.

Then the Senate beat back, 53 to 51, a proposal by Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., to establish a national firearms inventory in the Treasury Department. In this would be kept information with respect to the sale, transfer and ownership of firearms.

Also rejected, 49 to 35, was a proposal to require a license for carrying a concealed firearm.

The bill as it stands would impose a ban on interstate mail order sales of rifles and shotguns. And penalties were written in Tuesday for possessing a gun while committing any one of a list of federal crimes.

Registration and licensing was urged strongly by President Johnson after the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., as a followup to the firearms control legislation he had submitted earlier.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., came into the Senate to vote for tydings' amendment, his first appearance there since his brother was slain last June. He took no part in the debate.

With a long series of other amendments waiting to be acted on, Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen made a move to head off an avalanche of amendments aimed at curbing the Supreme Court's powers.

The Illinois senator withdrew an amendment he introduced two days ago to strip the court of power to overturn jury findings on obscenity. He had forecast its approval "by a whacking vote."

Dirksen said that after conferring with Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., he decided to submit his amendment as separate legislation. The authors of several other amendments aimed at the court had said they would call up their proposals if Dirksen asked for a vote on his.

Physicians To Attend State Meeting

At least two Warren County doctors will be among the hundreds of physicians attending the 119th annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Medical Society in Pittsburgh next week to act on matters affecting health care in the state.

The Warren County physicians are members of the state medical society's ruling body, the House of Delegates, a group proportionately representative of the county medical societies in the state.

They are Drs. Ross E. Bryan, Warren, and Harold J. Reinhard, North Warren. They will help shape the future of the organization of more than 12,000 Pennsylvania medical doctors by electing new officers, acting on resolutions and recommendations and determining the course of medical practice and health care.

The first meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 26, in session headquarters in the Pittsburgh Hilton Hotel. Speakers will include the president of the state society, Dr. John H. Harris, Sr., of Harrisburg, and the president-elect, Dr. George E. Farrar, Jr., of Philadelphia. Dr. Farrar will be elevated to the presidency on Sept. 28 after the delegates ballot for a new president-elect to take office a year from now.

Hearings — much like congressional hearings — will be held the second day of the meeting to air opinions and facts concerning the hundreds of reports, resolutions and recommendations that face the delegates.

After the elections on the third and final day, the delegates will conclude actions on the resolutions and recommendations.

A month later, three days of scientific teaching sessions on the latest developments in medical science will be held for all Pennsylvania physicians in Pittsburgh's Chatham Center. This is one of a series of back-to-school sessions sponsored by the state medical society to help medical doctors keep abreast of the changing science of medical practice.

Citizen Who Avoided 'Revenooers' Repents; Carried Illegal Bottle of Rhubarb Wine

HARRISBURG (AP) — A conscientious citizen calling herself "Mrs. Jane Doe," who avoided the "revenooers" in 1928, has now repented by contributing $50 each to the states of Michigan, Ohio, and Pennsylvania.

In a letter to Gov. Raymond P. Shafer of Pennsylvania, "Mrs. Doe," who said she was 70 years old and from Pittsburgh, confessed that in 1928, with Prohibition still in effect, she traveled from Michigan to Pennsylvania carrying an illegal bottle of rhubarb wine.

Mrs. Doe said she used the wine for "medicinal purposes." "Enclosed please find a money order for $150 which I feel I owe," Mrs. Doe wrote Shafer. "Please see that the state of Michigan and Ohio get $50.

"... I didn't know it was unlawful. A man told me it wasn't allowed. I couldn't sleep that night. I took a tablespoon full and poured the rest down the sink. I didn't realize I was doing wrong at the time, I'm sorry. Forgive me please and God bless you and your country."

After trying to locate a Mrs. Jane Doe in Pittsburgh, Gov. Shafer did as requested and sent $50 apiece to Govs. Romney of Michigan and Rhodes of Ohio.

Gov. Rhodes said he would put the money into a "good conscience" fund maintained by the Buckeye State.

Shafer Confident Wallace Won't Win 10% of State Vote

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shafer said Wednesday he was confident that presidential candidate George C. Wallace would not receive 10 per cent of the vote in Pennsylvania despite polls showing otherwise.

"I don't feel as greatly concerned about his candidacy as others do," Shafer said at a news conference. "I feel his influence will diminish because I have faith in the general election."

Most of the questions Shafer fielded during the half-hour meeting with newsmen related to politics in general and the candidacy of Wallace in particular.

Shafer charged the former Alabama governor with attempting to undermine the traditional two-party system for his own political gain. Wallace is founder of the American Independence Party.

"Wallace has a lot of followers," Shafer said. "Mostly they're former John Birchers, or people who are disillusioned themselves, or who don't want to see unity in the country, or who are looking through blinders, or who may be conscientious citizens, but who like simple answers to complex problems."

Shafer said periodic political soundings by Republican pollster E. John Bucci continue to show Wallace the choice of one in 10 Pennsylvania voters.

Asked about Bucci's findings in regard to major party candidates Richard M. Nixon and Hubert H. Humphrey, Shafer said he did not have those figures.

"I'm very optimistic that Richard Nixon will carry Pennsylvania," Shafer said. "If present trends continue, he will. I don't see how under the present situation he can carry Philadelphia, but I'm sure he will cut heavily into the Democratic margin."

Shafer announced at the start of the news conference that the state had issued the first general obligation bonds authorized by constitutional change approved by the voters in April. He said the new-type borrowing saved the taxpayers $9 million.

"Some $88,530,000 worth of general obligation bonds was sold to Morgan Guaranty and Trust Co. at a rate slightly above 4.1 per cent," said Shafer, who noted that recent authority bond issues have cost interest rates of 4.3 and 4.5 per cent.

The governor also reported that Standard and Poor, one of the nation's leading investment houses, was continuing its AAA rating for Pennsylvania bonds, enabling the state to continue obtaining lower interest rates on future borrowing.

"I must express my pleasure with these two fiscal facts because it proves that we are making the right decisions for the people of Pennsylvania," Shafer said. "It was right to fight so hard for constitutional reform. It was right for the taxpayer."

Problem of 'Association'

Is it "animal unrest"? Does the fact that ecological conditions alone prevent other members of the animal kingdom from becoming too numerous in limited areas have anything to do with the pattern of human behavior as we know it in the latter part of the 20th Century?

There are those who think so. There are those who point to the almost sudden craze of our urban populations for the outdoors—hunting, fishing, camping, boating, hiking and trail riding—as simply an animal reaction to compensate for the crowded conditions under which they are forced to live. A desire to return to the cave man status humans enjoyed before civilization started the encroachment that is presently approaching the impossible.

There are those who believe that the concentration we have in our larger cities is leading huge seg-

Collusion with 'Mr. Big'

(C) N.Y. Times News Service
NEW YORK — Richard Nixon now has charged that Vice President Humphrey is in collusion with George Wallace to block a Nixon victory in the South. Humphrey and the Democratic National Chairman, Larry O'Brien, have worked mightily to lump Nixon and Wallace together as candidates trying to exploit white fears of racial turbulence. In Kentucky, Happy Chandler — Wallace's erstwhile running mate, who was canned for being soft on Negroes — charges that Wallace really is being manipulated by an unknown "Mr. Big." As for Wallace, he said in Texas in response to Nixon: "I'm in collusion with the voters."

Fond of hyperbole as Wallace undoubtedly is, this is nearer the truth than the charges of the other propagandists — except perhaps those of Chandler. His suggestion that Wallace is getting southwest oil money probably is true, but that is not necessarily the same thing as being "controlled" by some right-wing fat cat, Nixon's version of the

SYLVIA PORTER

What's Your Real Pay?

If you're a typical wage-earner in the U.S., your gross weekly earnings are now up to an all-time high $109.16 a full $13.18 a week more than your pay in September 1965, when the escalation of the Vietnam War got underway.

But do you know how much of this pay gain is "real" — assuming you have three dependents? To translate, do you know how much of this $13.18 is left in actual purchasing power after you have deducted Social Security and federal income taxes and made adjustments for higher living costs?

A mere 23 cents a week.

If you're a typical factory worker in manufacturing, your gross weekly pay is up to a record $122.10, a full $14.27 a week above September 1965.

But assuming again that yours is a family of four, do you know how you stand in terms of "real" pay, meaning after deductions for federal income and Social Security taxes and adjustments for rising prices?

Your real pay is actually DOWN 63 cents a week.

At the end of this column, you'll find a compilation prepared for me by the Bureau of Labor Statistics which shows what groups are ahead in "real" pay, who is behind and by how much.

The compilation tears apart the overall dollar figures on pay increases which can, in a period of accelerating inflation mask much more than they reveal.

It discloses the extent to which the 1966-67 inflation has been and is eroding the apparent rise in paychecks.

And although it doesn't state it directly, it dramatizes how pitifully far behind is the family living on a rigidly set or comparatively set income, the individual living on Social Security or a private pension or savings invested in fixed-income securities.

This sort of compilation is dynamite at any time. It could be of explosive importance in this bitter presidential election year.

Who's ahead the most? The worker in construction. The rise in his wages has been at a pace which dwarfs the increase in his taxes and living costs. His gross weekly check is up $21.87 in three years from $138.75 to $167.62. His real net spendable earnings, assuming three dependents, are up from $111.73 to $116.95. He is ahead by $5.22 a week, an indisputable gain on the living standard ladder.

The explanation for this erosion is on the front pages every day: the Vietnam war. When piled on top of an already booming economy, it was simply too much.

The superb balance between wage and price increases disappeared, prices started to zoom, wages started to surge up, the leapfrog was on and it's still on.

The restraints of a tax surcharge and spending cuts must moderate the pace of economic advance as 1968 rolls on and 1969 begins. An informed estimate is that the growth in our total output of goods and services will be $10-$11 billion in the final quarter of 1968 against around $14 billion in the current quarter and $20 billion a quarter at the start of 1968. But this will not lead at once to a considerable slowing in the pace of price rise.

The outlook now is that next year, the increase in the cost of living, as measured by the official consumer price index, will be less than 1968's 4 1/4 per cent or so, but that as far as any responsible forecast can go now. How much less the rise will be will depend on the economic policies of the next administration. And if the next President will not tolerate a major rise in unemployment in order to force a slowdown in the rise of living costs, it will be a long time before our country returns to an acceptable upward crawl of 2-2 1/2 - 3 per cent a year.

GROUP	WEEKLY PAY 9 - 1965	WEEKLY PAY 7 - 68	WEEKLY CHANGE IN REAL PAY "REAL" PAY ADJ. FOR TAXES PRICE RISE INCL.

The fact is that this extraordinary man has a remarkable hold on a sizeable and — apparently — increasing number of American voters because, more than any other candidate in the race, he speaks in the words they long to voice, and he promises them the release their tensions demand.

If there were not deep and divisive racial problems in America, the candidacy of even so gripping a southern demagogue as George Wallace would be unlikely to get off the ground outside the old confederacy; but it oversimplifies Wallace's apparent gains elsewhere to suggest that racism is the sole cause.

This, after all, is a frustrating, exasperating, nerve-racking time. It is an era of scientific and technological change so sweeping as actually to alter the means by which man perceives and learns, and so profound as to call into genuine question many of the moral and ethical values which have been, if not unchallenged, long dominant. Life no longer conforms to the old texts and will not even permit the generations to change gracefully; the young in their abrasive manner and with their altogether different experience are here too soon, demanding to be heeded, long before their elders are ready even to listen, let alone yield.

In such a time, it will be a candidate who is relevant, however dangerously, to real American life — to the fear and irritation and bewilderment and the increasing hatred that an unsettled time and an unfamiliar world and a terrifying pace inevitably have produced.

Wallace has no answers exceptions of our population to the brink of madness. And they prove their point by placing an over-population of white mice in a single cage, feeding them the most nutritious foods and providing the finest in sanitary facilities, then watching them go crazy from sheer association.

Therefore, there are those who are quite convinced that the cure of our ghetto problems is not to be found in such a simple solution as better housing, or even full employment. Cities, they say, will always produce a huge proportion of individuals who cannot cope with the problem of "association," so there will always be the thousands of malcontents, misfits, and unemployables regardless of an improved environment.

Redistribution of our population, they claim is the one and final answer. Maybe they are right.

Trend Is Split Tickets

HARRISBURG — When the voter registration books snapped shut throughout Pennsylvania on Monday in a prelude to the upcoming November 3 presidential election it turned the key of hope for both Democrats and Republicans fighting to carry the Keystone State for their respective presidential gladiators.

For Democrats it's a fight to knock off the 45,241 registration lead held by Republicans during the spring primary earlier in the year. Republicans are equally determined to increase their lead — a possibility that looks more realistic at the moment although the outcome won't really be known until the official tabulations are issued by the State Elections Bureau.

"The question invariably arises as to just how critical are these registration figures, can they be considered a barometer of things to come on the election front?"

The favorite answer seems to be a hedge on all points! However one point most political pros seem agreed upon is that within the past quarter-century registration figures have come to mean less and less insofar as being a major factor in determining the outcome of an election.

Prior to that time in the days of the vaunted machine rule elections pretty well followed registration trends. Today the story is a bit different with cross-votes and split tickets more the order of the day than ever before.

A look back over the past quarter-century at some of the trends in presidential years in Pennsylvania is interesting.

For example, during the course of the six presidential elections within that period, in only two instances did the ultimate presidential winner fail to follow the registration majority in the Keystone State.

One of those occurred in 1944 when Democrat Franklin D. Roosevelt in his successful final term bid swamped Republican Thomas E. Dewey — with Pennsylvania Republicans at that time holding a commanding 791,152 registration edge. Mr. Roosevelt even carried the Keystone State that year — by 105,425 votes.

The second registration-winner contravention came four years later in 1948 when Mr. Dewey in his second bid was again failed to the pits — with Pennsylvania Republicans this time waving a registration edge of 1,053,512. However in contrast to the preceding presidential runoff, Mr. Dewey this time carried Pennsylvania over Harry S. Truman by a somewhat squeaky vote edge of 148,771.

By 1952 the GOP edge in the Keystone State was "down" to 993,567 when Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower won handily over Adlai E. Stevenson — carrying Pennsylvania by a plurality of 269,520.

When Mr. Eisenhower successfully bid for his second term in 1956, again over luckless Mr. Stevenson, the swamping was even greater in the Keystone State when he amassed a plurality in this go-around of 603,483. Interestingly though, by 1956 the GOP registration edge in the state had dropped to 446,911 — the last time Republicans were destined to go into a presidential election with a registration lead.

By the time 1960 rolled around Pennsylvania Democrats for the first time in the history of the state held a registration edge during a presidential year — a rip-roaring 2965 edge, and when late President John F. Kennedy won the toss that year, he edged GOP hopeful Richard M. Nixon in the state by 116,328 votes.

Presidential year 1964 saw Pennsylvania Democrats with a healthy registration edge of 124,831 and in the Lyndon B. Johnson crush of that year Mr. Johnson gained a record breaking plurality in the state over Barry M. Goldwater of 1,457,297.

On the basis of their record going into the spring primary this year Pennsylvania Republicans should emerge with a healthier registration edge for the presidential this November. Its effectiveness remains to be seen.

cept disastrous ones, but that is not the point; he senses what gnaws at people on the most basic level of their existence, and he does not hesitate — it is instinct with him — to appeal to them on that level. So far from being a "law and order candidate," George Wallace would let human instinct loose, to be above the law and beyond order, and that is the sad truth of why he is "in collusion" with so many American voters that all the rest should be justly alarmed.

Russia's Stupidest Mistake

(Editor's Note — Drew Pearson, now traveling through the countries surrounding Czechoslovakia, today continues his reporting on the aftermaths of the Soviet invasion.)

BUDAPEST — The Russians, having committed the stupidest mistake of their many years of diplomatic boners, have now decided to make West Germany the scapegoat. They have branded West German militarism as their reason for sending tanks rumbling into Czechoslovakia.

If the Kremlin sticks to previous precedent, it's probable that heads will roll. In the past, Khrushchev, Malenkov, Molotov, all paid for their mistakes by being retired or demoted.

This time the Soviet is being run by a committee-type government, so several heads may roll. Ever since the momentous decision of August 20, skilled diplomats in the West have been trying to figure out who tipped the balance inside the Kremlin for the Czech invasion.

They have concluded in the first place that it was a close vote by a margin of only one or two. Second, they have figured that it was a military-type decision. The Kremlin saw something in Czechoslovakia that was moving, and not knowing exactly what else to do, it fired. The occupation of Czechoslovakia did not take much military planning, because the Red Army and its allied armies of the Warsaw Pact had been in Czechoslovakia on joint maneuvers two or three weeks earlier and this made it very simple to invade without advance preparation.

The roll call of the tough guys inside the Kremlin who voted for the invasion comes chiefly from the Czechs who had a showdown with the Soviet leaders, first at Cerna and Bratislava, later in the Kremlin when President Ludwik Svoboda and four other leaders threatened to commit suicide unless they were released and permitted to participate in the talks.

Tough guys in these talks were Pyotr Shelest, head of the Communist party in the Ukraine, who was brutal in his behavior; Premier Alexei Kosygin; Defense Minister Andrei Grechko; Party Secretary Andrei Kirilenko; and Alexander Sholep, who had been in charge of security under Khrushchev and had been demoted to the much less important job of Chief of Trade Unions. Presumably he wanted to win recognition again by being tough.

Kosygin was reported as having been very tough in Bratislava, but less so in Moscow after the decision had been taken. Leonid Brezhnev was reported as wavering.

Whatever may have been their degree of responsibility, however, there is no question but that Walter Ulbricht, the hard-boiled orthodox Communist boss of East Germany, helped tip the scales for military action. He is also the man who sold Kremlin leaders on making West Germany the scapegoat.

At Bratislava where the Warsaw Pact leaders

Attempt to Turn On Chicago

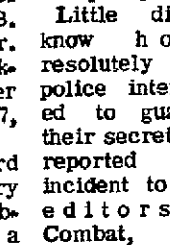

My young visitor chatted about some of the achievements of the chemical industry and some of its headaches. For instance, how to protect city water supplies. Take what happened a few days ago just before the convention opened in Chicago, the young chemical engineer went on. The cops caught a couple of hippies pouring a fortune's worth of LSD into the city water supply. What they didn't know is what any freshman in chemistry would know, that chlorine neutralizes lysergic acid, so that the LSD didn't take. The police have hushed up the story. It's bad enough as it is (we spoke on the day that Mr. Humphrey was nominated).

Little did I know how resolutely the police intended to guard their secret. I reported the incident to the editors of Combat, National Review's new anti-leftist newsletter, and an account of it appeared in the opening issue. Time Magazine, appraising that issue, labeled the story as "more colorful than correct, since there are no reservoirs in Chicago, and LSD would have no effect anyway."

The New York Times checked out the story: and was informed, one infers from the subsequent silence, that it was apocryphal.

Here are the facts (My God I sound like Drew Pearson): Chicago's "reservoir" is Lake Michigan. Nobody is likely to attempt to contaminate Lake Michigan, so that the Chicago police, putting on Time and the New York Times, were technically correct in saying that nobody threw LSD into Chicago's "reservoir."

What happens between Lake Michigan and the drinking glass, however, is that the water is drawn from Lake Michigan, filtered, and then stored and chlorinated in lake-side tanks. At 2:30 a.m. on August 22, a guard at one of the newer water treatment plants, built on 51 acres of filled-in lakefront, surprised two boys and a girl, all three of them from the Chicago area and all of them in their early twenties, dumping a quart-sized glass jar of crystallized LSD into the plant's final holding tank. Although the miscreants have since then been utterly uncommunicative, acting on the advice of their lawyer, they did admit, on being apprehended, that they had poured the contents of a quart into the holding tank every single night for a week, and were baffled at their failure to turn on Chicago.

met August 3 to formalize an agreement with Czech leaders, Czech party leader Alexander Dubcek proposed that the final communique contain a reference to new forces in West Germany which sincerely desired peace.

Whereupon Ulbricht hit the ceiling. He delivered a harangue that if there were any forces in Germany desiring peace they were represented by the German Communist party. Foreign Minister Willy Brandt, Ulbricht said, did not represent a sincere German faction for peace. Ulbricht discounted Brandt's efforts to discourage the "Revenchists" — those who seek revenge by wanting to take back the Sudetenland from Czechoslovakia and Upper Silesia from Poland. Brandt's alleged peace efforts, Ulbricht said, were for the birds.

Ulbricht ignored, of course, the fact that the German Communist party is infinitesimal and represents only a tiny fraction of the German electorate.

Ulbricht has kept hammering on Russian leaders, both before and after the invasion of Czechoslovakia, that West Germany is a grave menace. And this was one of the reasons which tipped the scales in the fatal decision. It has been adopted as the chief propaganda line ever since.

The Kremlin of course definitely had an obligation to Ulbricht. He has been the most orthodox of all Communist leaders and the most loyal to Moscow. Furthermore, he has performed a minor economic miracle in East Germany by pulling that country up to the position of one of the leading industrial nations of Europe and the eighth industrial nation in the world.

The standard of living of the East German people is higher than in all of the Communist countries which have strayed away from the strict party line, such as Yugoslavia. Finally, Ulbricht has made the Berlin Wall work. It has stopped the flow of skilled workers out of East Germany to West Germany, which prior to the wall was sapping the economic life of the nation.

However, Czechoslovakia presented a real menace. In the first place, Czechoslovakia was getting West German credits and increasing its trade with West Germans. Second, the flow of skilled workers out of East Germany was beginning to start again.

Czechoslovakia had removed the barbed wire entanglements along her West German borders and was permitted a free flow of people into and out of West Germany by either train or plane. All East Germans had to do was to visit Czechoslovakia, a Communist country, and then travel back to West Germany. Thus the Berlin Wall was in danger of becoming an empty monument to a frustrated Ulbricht.

Now that the Russians have to justify their stupidest mistake since Stalin ordered the invasion of South Korea, they have fanned up all the "Revenchist" statements made in the past by West Germans pointing to the danger Strauss may come back once again to lead the German military.

And what if — the chemical engineer gave several examples — other drugs and most frighteningly poisons, of the variety that are not neutralized by chlorine, were introduced into the water systems? There are infinite variables in the situation. Opium, for instance, does not deliquesce at an even rate, like LSD; so that an attempt to turn on a city by opium could result in one individual's drinking a perfectly harmless dose at one drinking fountain, while his neighbor, at an adjacent fountain, gulped down a lethal dose.

The police in Chicago don't know what to do. There are plenty of laws knocking around. The flower children used a ladder, scaled a barbed wire fence, had a difficulty in reaching over to the ground level tanks, which are covered only by open grillwork. There is a temptation to drop the prosecution in order to keep the story quiet. If on the other hand they did prosecute, even Time and the New York Times would hear about it, and the craze might spread. On the other hand, three contaminants could be sent up for a good long time if you add together all the laws they violated, including, possibly, a federal national security statute. As always, a dilemma.

Chicago has meanwhile instituted, following the episode of a fortnight ago, a 24-hour guard over its water reservoirs, and young chemists, who know the horrors that deranged laboratory technicians are capable of, tremble at the thought of what could be.

Ben, Phil, George, Joe and "Doc" had shown up by this time. George was the first to notice something was wrong. "These potato chips are very soggy," he said.

"My wife was crying in them," I apologized, "I'll get a fresh bag after the next time out."

"The women are certainly taking the season hard," Ben said. "I never saw them so upset."

"You can say that again," said Doc. "Just before I came over my wife told me she was going to find herself a lover."

"So did mine," said Phil. "What did you say?"

"I said she couldn't. I needed the car to come over here," "None of you seem worried," Ben said.

"Why should we be?" said George. "Who are they going to find when everyone's watching football on television?"

ART BUCHWALD

The Unhappy Wives

WASHINGTON — The football season has opened on schedule, and once again families all over the country are being torn apart by the heavy schedule of televised games. I frankly regret the season has come. My wife and I were just getting a good relationship going, and now we probably won't see each other until January.

The last time I talked to her, which was a half-hour before the Washington Redskins-Chicago Bears game, I believe she was crying. I remember it quite distinctly because Frank Gifford was showing some great moves of Gale Sayers, and I noticed out of the corner of my eye that my wife was getting tears all over my potato chips.

"I hate soggy potato chips," I said.

But she didn't want to listen to reason. "Why does it have to happen to us every fall? What have I done wrong?" There was a commercial on so I put my arms around her. "You haven't done anything wrong, Luv. Matter of fact, I was just telling the boys yesterday during halftime between the Tennessee-Georgia game, you're a precious jewel and next to football on TV, I love you more than anything else in the world."

She pushed me away. "I thought so. Well, do you know what I think of football?" "Don't say something you'll be sorry for," I warned. "I think it's the great American homosexual game of tag."

"Now you've done it," I said angrily. "Now you've really done it. By making that uncalled-for outburst, you have probably ruined my Sunday afternoon. If I could get up from this chair I'd probably walk out of this house."

She started crying again, so I moved the potato chips away. "I don't know if I can take another season of this," she said. "It isn't just the Saturday and Sunday afternoons. It's the long, lonely nights when they're showing games, and the game replays in the mornings and the specials on Vince Lombardi. Don't you have feelings for me?"

"You're exaggerating," I said. "There was no pro football on last Tuesday night. I know that's a fact because it was the night I played poker."

"I'm getting fed up," she cried. "I'm not going to sit here day after day, night after night, wasting away while you make love to a television set." I was becoming nervous because it was getting near kick-off time. "What are you going to do?"

"I'm leaving. I'm going to find someone who cares about me, someone who wants me for myself." Then she said, "I might even take a lover."

"Hey, that's a good idea," I said. "But will you be sure there's enough beer in the icebox? We ran out last weekend."

She stomped out of the room just in time. Washington had won the toss and had elected to receive.

Narick To Seek USW Presidency

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Emil E. Narick, charging that the United Steelworkers Union leadership is living in the past, will challenge incumbent I.W. Abel for the union's presidency.

"We need leaders who can adjust to the 20th century," Narick, 51, is quoted in a brochure backing his candidacy. "We cannot afford 'old-guard' leadership for another four years."

A committee backing Narick, the union's assistant general counsel, has been mailing the brochure to members. It also says the rank-and-file is no longer content with "the present top leadership of our union or lack of it."

Word of Narick's candidacy leaked out as the only announced challenger, Donald C. Rarick, died of an apparent heart attack. Rarick, 49, was the first man to contest an incumbent USW president when he ran unsuccessfully against David J. McDonald in 1957.

Narick, a top Eastern college football official and former attorney for the National Labor Relations board, was in Erie Wednesday and unavailable to comment about the challenge to Abel. Abel declined to comment.

The brochure quoted Narick as saying the union needs a leader who can grow to meet the demands of a rapidly changing technological age and match the qualifications of industry representatives with whom the union bargains collectively.

He called himself a member of the "now" generation, although matured in thought.

Labor Dept. Approves Job Training Contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department approved Wednesday a $9.1 million contract for job training of 7,000 hard core unemployed in 26 cities.

The cities include New York, Rochester and Buffalo in New York state and Philadelphia, Pa. Westchester County, N.Y., also is included.

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz said the contract, with the National Urban League, is the largest single job training agreement in the six-year history of the Manpower Development and Training Act.

Whitney M. Young Jr., director of the Urban League, signed the contract with Wirtz.

The department said $8.8 million under the contract will be distributed through subcontracts to Urban League affiliates for job training in the 26 cities. The rest of the money will be used by the league for administrative cost of the program over 18 months.

The job training money will be paid out to individual employers for the cost of training. Trainees will receive wages from the employers from the start of the program.

"The Urban League has proven to be one of the most productive organizations in reaching those disadvantaged individuals who will benefit most from job training and placement programs," Wirtz said.

"The new contract will assure many more minority citizens in this country the economic means for fuller participation in the actuality of the American dream," Young said.

Trainees under the program will spend from four to 52 weeks in on-the-job instruction in a wide variety of skilled and semi-skilled trades.

The trainees will also receive supporting services such as limited medical care, remedial education, counseling and job coaching where needed.

Hospital Assn. Elects President

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The executive director of San Francisco's Mount Zion Hospital was elected president-elect of the American Hospital Association Wednesday.

The election of Mark Berke took place in the house of delegates session which saw Dr. George W. Graham, executive director of Ellis Hospital in Schenectady, N.Y., installed as the association's new president.

In his inaugural address to the AHA's 70th annual convention, Graham urged the hospitalmen to support voluntary agencies in health services to avoid increased federal controls.

Graham succeeded Dr. David B. Wilson of Jackson, Miss. Berke, a former member of the National Advisory Commission on Health Manpower, is credited with pioneering new programs in health care for the aged, home care and hospitalization of alcoholics.

A native of London, he came to the United States in 1938. He was director of Philadelphia's Mt. Sinai Hospital before moving to San Francisco.

New AHA board members elected to three year terms were Horace M. Caldwell, administrator of Lufkin, Tex., Memorial Hospital; William A. Guy, Des Moines, Iowa, president of Iowa Blue Cross; Maj. Gen. Alonzo A. Towner, Washington, D.C., deputy surgeon general of the Air Force; and Kenneth F. Wallace, assistant administrator of St. John's Hospital, Tulsa, Okla.

Bill Would Cutoff Federal Funds To Student Rioters

(C) N.Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON — Senate and House conferees agreed Wednesday on a compromise designed to stem the flow of federal loans and grants to students who engage in serious campus disturbances.

The curb on student rioters is part of a $7.2 billion three-year program of federal aid to colleges and universities.

Conferees reached agreement on the anti-riot proposal and other differences in the meeting that lasted from early Tuesday until long after last midnight.

As passed in July by the House, in the wake of Columbia University disturbances, the bill called for a mandatory cutoff of federal aid to students whose actions were "of a serious nature and contributed to the disruption of the administration of such institution."

The mandatory cutoff was vigorously opposed by the administration and by numerous colleges and universities.

Under the Senate-House compromise, students would face loss of federal aid for a period of two years under these conditions:

-If convicted by a court of any crime involving use of force, disruption of campus activities or seizure of college property.

-If he or she willfully refused to obey lawful regulations or orders of college officials.

In both cases, funds could be ordered cut off only after opportunity for hearing and upon the finding by university and college officials that the offense was of a serious nature and contributed to substantial disruption of an institution's administration.

Some conferees, opposed to any such curbs, reluctantly accepted the compromise in view of obviously strong congressional sentiment for cracking down on student rioters.

The House curb had been written into the higher education bill in July by a vote of 259 to 147.

More than 1.4 million students — a fourth of all college students in the U.S. — now receive about $1 billion a year in federal loans, fellowship payments, scholarships and work-study grants.

The compromise bill agreed upon early Wednesday would authorize $7.2 billion over three years for a wide variety of existing and new program of federal aid to colleges, universities and their students.

Final Senate and House action is expected next week.

The compromise would authorize $819 million for this fiscal year, which began July 1; $2,845 billion for fiscal 1970, and $3.5 billion for fiscal 1971. The Senate Bill has called for $13 billion over a four-year period; the House bill, $5 billion over two years.

Funds would be authorized for existing programs of student loans, scholarships, fellowships and work-study grants and construction of academic facilities.

In addition, there would be funds for such new programs as a special services for the disadvantaged, improvement of graduation and public service education.

Meanwhile, another set of Senate-House conferees began negotiations Wednesday over a big Education Appropriations Bill carrying a House-approved ban on compulsory busing of students.

488,548 Drivers Convicted Of Point Violation in State

(Editor's Note: First of two articles covering experience under the Point System in the first two years the law has been in effect, starting on July 24, 1966. This article gives overall statistics on the number of convictions under the Point System.)

Statistics released Wednesday on Pennsylvania's educational Point System disclose that 488,548 drivers have been convicted of a point violation during the first two years the law has been in effect.

Warner M. Depuy, Secretary of Revenue, in reviewing experience under the new system for dealing with traffic law violators since the law went into effect on July 24, 1966, expressed satisfaction with the Point System.

"The Point System," Depuy said, "is apparently doing the job for which it was intended—to provide a curb on those who would persist in breaking traffic laws; to deal fairly and equitably with those drivers who commit a violation unintentionally or out of carelessness, and to provide a program of education through Driver Improvement Schools to help the occasional violator become a safer and better driver."

A breakdown for the two years shows that there were 267,948 convictions recorded during the first year the law was in effect, and 220,600 convictions during the second year.

Of the 488,548 convictions during the first two years, 122,800 motorists were notified that they were required to attend a Driver Improvement School after accumulating six points; another 348,954 received notification that they had accumulated five or less points, and 4,863 received an automatic suspension for having amassed 11 points.

Of the motorists establishing a point record during the two-year period, 11,304 motorists accumulated six points a second time during the two-year period, requiring a special examination, only 627 reached six points a third time, requiring an interview for a review of the driver's record and appropriate action.

In addition to convictions under the Point System, another 31,135 convictions of junior operators were processed under the former suspension system during the same two-year period. Junior operators do not come under the Point System.

"In view of the foregoing statistics reported by the Bureau of Traffic Safety," Depuy said, "we are of the opinion that the system is proving an effective deterrent to traffic law violations, and while these figures are nothing of which our motorists can be proud, we do feel we are moving in the right direction."

"We feel the Driver Improvement School feature of the law is helping us to do the job intended—educate and motivate all motorists to become better drivers."

FREEDOM PARK URGED
NEW DELHI (AP)—Creation of a Hyde Park for New Delhi has been urged by M. L. Sondhi, Jan Sangh member of Parliament.

He said the Indian capital needs a place where citizens can enjoy "unrestricted freedom of speech and action."

Sondhi was complaining against invoking of emergency orders which prevent gatherings of more than five persons in the capital.

the law which will be explained in a subsequent article.

Not included in the Point System are violations requiring mandatory revocation such as conviction for drinking and driving, use of narcotics or habit-producing drugs, and failure to stop and render assistance when involved in an accident.

Brainard reported that convictions under the Point System "run the gamut" of point penalties, ranging from three points for improper passing and overtaking, to six points for speeding and improper passing on a curve or crest of a hill.

(TOMORROW: A breakdown on penalties assessed for violations of the various categories will appear in the second and final article on experience under the Point System.)

THE HARRIS SURVEY

Perhaps the deepest conflict in the 1968 presidential election is a difference in the old-style appeals of either major-party presidential candidate, on the one hand, and the outlook of new kinds of voters on the other.

Fundamentally, Richard Nixon is striving to put together an Eisenhower-type majority, while Hubert Humphrey is seeking to keep together the dominant Democratic coalition of the past 36 years. Both coalitions were based on the traditional assumption that any majority in American politics consists of getting many diverse and even opposed sections of the electorate to join together to vote for a common candidate.

The problem for Humphrey in this age of more polarized politics is most acute. On the other hand, he must achieve over 90 per cent of the Negro vote and also over 50 per cent of the white labor-union vote to win.

Blacks have become more uncompromising than ever in their demands for equality. But the trade union rank and file has veered sharply over to the backlash side and has been giving George Wallace approximately 27 per cent of its vote and Nixon another 27 per cent, leaving Humphrey with barely 40 per cent.

Nixon also has his problems. By taking a deliberate "Southern strategy" in the GOP convention, the Republican nominee sought to hold onto many of the Dixie Democrats who bolted over to Barry Goldwater in 1964 on the race issue. At the same time, Nixon hopes to roll up big majorities in the affluent suburbs and metropolitan areas of the big states in the North which went so heavily for Lyndon Johnson.

Yet on the key issues of this election, "law and order" and race, Southern voters and the Northern affluent are miles apart. Among white people, the well educated in the North feel most deeply that America must speed up progress for black people. The views of Southern whites are the diametric opposite.

At last reading, the breakage on the key issues was giving Nixon his early lead. His vote leads Humphrey's by 20 points among people who see "Negro militants as a major cause of the breakdown of law and order," by 19 points among those who see "the courts as a major cause of the breakdown of law and order," by 22 points among those who believe "Negroes have less native intelligence than whites" and by 14 points among people who are worried about "Communist influence in American life."

Among voters who do not go along with these propositions, Humphrey holds an advantage of from 3 to 12 points. This is not enough to overcome Nixon's big bulge with the group up in arms over the law-and-order and racial issues. Significantly, Nixon is able to mount his lead among "disaffected" voters in this election, despite his having to share this vote with Wallace.

However, there are two points which should not be overlooked and which can determine the final outcome in November:

1--Consistently, among people who are aroused over the courts and black militancy, the number of voters undecided about their choice for President is very low—ranging between 3 and 8 per cent. In contrast, voters who either are worried over criticism of the courts or feel that America is already late in making racial progress are far more uncertain about their voting intentions. Their undecided total mounts up to between 10 and 15 per cent. How this undecided vote eventually comes down could make an appreciable difference.

2--The "soft" vote in this election lies among young people and the affluent or college educated. Both groups wanted an election that would have pitted Nelson Rockefeller against Eugene McCarthy. At the latest count, Nixon was more than 12 points ahead of Humphrey with both these swing segments of the electorate. Yet majorities of both also feel rather deeply that attacks on the courts and racial backlashes are morally wrong and politically bad for America.

Pennsylvania Happenings

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Once a judge, always a judge—and they never stop giving opinions. That's the way it is with Horace Stern, former Chief Justice of Pennsylvania, who observed his 90th birthday last month. He left the State Supreme Court 12 years ago but he's still right on top of the law, maintaining the quiet, analytical, unemotional attitude that was his judicial trademark.

Stern spent 35 years on the bench, 21 on Pennsylvania's highest tribunal, and has been a lawyer since 1902.

The law was—and is—most of his life. He still is consulted on sticky civil cases by members of the large Philadelphia firm which sprouted from the small practice he began at the turn of the century with Morris Wolf.

He looks back, and he looks forward, and his face dimples in a smile, and his eyes twinkle, and the thin fringe of white hair on the sides of his head make him look almost like a happy, elderly angel. He talks about the new breed of lawyer, the specialist; about the new kind of law laid down by the U. S. Supreme Court; and even about baseball. "In the old days," he reminisces, "a client would come to my office and ask me to draw up his will. I would sit down and do it myself, and charge him maybe $25."

"Today, if a lawyer is asked to draw up a will, the first thing he does is call on two or three consultants. He'll get tax specialists and estate planners."

"And this is not only true in the area of wills. It's typical of all aspects of the law. An attorney is now more an office consultant than an individual lawyer. A case is more likely to be regarded as between two firms than two individual lawyers."

About the U. S. Supreme Court, under severe attack recently because of decisions affecting the rights of criminals, Stern acknowledges that the rights of accused must be guaranteed.

"But under recent decisions a suspect must be given as much explanation of legal niceties as a student in law school," he says.

He believes that the law, sometimes, shouldn't be strictly interpreted.

"There is much which is left to the judgment of a wise judge within the bounds of the law," Stern says. "Otherwise, judges would be mere automatons. There would be no need for judges. Everything could be looked up in a book."

Bulicz Starts For Syracuse

There will be a familiar face in the Syracuse University starting backfield this Saturday for area football fans as the Indians battle the Michigan State Spartans with former Sheffield gridiron player, John Bulicz, stepping back into the Syracuse lineup for his fourth season.

Bulicz was a member of the 1964 Wolverine squad which

Penn State and a 27-14 defeat from Navy.

In his second year at Syracuse Bulicz played tailback behind Floyd Little and some fullback. Last year he was a key man with Larry Zonka as they alternated the fullback and tight end spots. In Saturday's game he will be playing wingback, or what is more commonly known in the College loop as flanker.

Majoring in liberal arts at Syracuse he is now a senior and will be graduating in June. As for his future plans he still is undecided. Bulicz stands 6-foot tall and weighs 205-pounds. While viewing the game which will start at 2 p.m. over ABC networks fans should watch for No. 46—it will be Sheffield's Bulicz.

Sheffield's Bulicz

went undefeated and during his years of play at Sheffield collected many honors. Besides being named Most Valuable Player in the Allegheny Mountain League and being selected an area All-Star by the Olean-Times Herald, he was named to the All-State team of the Associated Press poll and the first team on the United Press International poll.

Upon graduation Bulicz was grabbed by Syracuse and offered a four-year full football scholarship which he accepted. Since that time he has accumulated an excellent record of play including the 8-2 record which Syracuse finished the season with last year. The only losses on the Indian slate were a 29-20 squeaker with

Tiger Town Left in Ruins After Victory Celebration

DETROIT (AP) — The champagne bottles were cleared away and the grass and outfield fences at Tiger Stadium were repaired Wednesday in the wake of an emotionally exhausting celebration of the Detroit Tigers first American League pennant in 23 years.

Thousands of Tiger fans celebrated at the ball park and in downtown Detroit after the Tigers wrapped up their American League title with a 2-1 victory.

Proud Of Dragon Win

'Ready For Rockets,' Shea Tells Boosters

By DENNY BONAVENTA

"Titusville has had two weeks to sit around and wait for Warren—but you can take it from me, Warren's going to be just as ready for them."

Those comments by coach Toby Shea set the tone of Wednesday's Warren Sports Boosters meeting in the WAHS cafeteria. The coach's comments were enthusiastically received by the crowd of 250 parents, fans, and friends of the Dragons in attendance.

The Dragon mentor narrated films of Warren's 14-13 victory over Franklin, and observed that "we're all proud of the job these boys did. They were tough when they had to be, and we're happy with the win."

Commenting on his reaction to the game, Shea observed that "this was a good game from the spectators' point of view—a victory, and an exciting one. But we as coaches feel that it could have been a 36-0 victory rather than a one-point win."

Shea was frank in accepting responsibility for crucial play calls, including the Dragons' field goal attempt late in the first half, and the deep reverse in the third quarter which fell a yard short of another touchdown.

He stated that the Dragons followed their preplanned strategy of running to the outside and countering off-tackle in the early going, but that the loss of Bill Songer in the first stanza necessitated considerable adjustment in the backfield. "And that took us awhile, during which we weren't particularly sharp," he said.

Warren's defense came in for considerable praise from the youthful head coach. "Time after time they kept us in the game," he observed.

Citing the pre-season consensus that Warren's defensive secondary was inexperienced, Shea observed that "any team ry over the New York Yankees Tuesday night.

Usually sedate Tiger owner John Fetzer found himself drenched in the Tigers' whirlpool bath and Manager Mayo Smith got the same treatment as the Tigers celebrated by tossing players, newsmen and anyone else they could get hold of into the whirlpool or dousing them with champagne.

Thousands of the 46,000 fans who saw the Tigers' pennant clincher rushed into the field to mob the players.

Tiger officials said large sections of sod were stripped from the playing field. Fans carried home in triumph an estimated 300 box seats. Still others knocked part of the right and left field lower fences loose.

Detroit police posted two officers atop home plate and they repulsed a few fans who had designs on digging it up. The fans then tried to dig up a pitcher's warmup rubber but found it was in too deep.

that intercepts four passes against as polished a squad as Franklin is not inexperienced. Now they are experienced, and if they're playing cautiously, it's because of our game plan."

Regarding the Rockets, the Dragon chieftan was typically cryptic.

He voiced great respect for Gene McNamara, Titusville's deep-pocket passer, and observed that the Rockets have a fast, hefty backfield to complement his aerial antics. And he noted that Warren would have to cope with McNamara's favorite play, a fake to the man going into the line followed by a quarterback keeper to the outside.

Other items considered at the meeting included an announcement by Booster president John Smith that plans are nearly completed for the football team's excursion to a college football game.

Grimsley Picks Sooners In Upset Over Irishmen

By WILL GRIMSLEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Two of college football's giants, Notre Dame and Oklahoma, crash into each other going around the first corner Saturday, and the question is which one will fall.

The odds-makers say it has to be Oklahoma, smaller, with less depth yet more speed. Notre Dame is ranked third nationally, Oklahoma fifth. But chances are the Fighting Irish will be looking over the head of the Sooners to the following week's game with Purdue.

So it's Oklahoma in our first upset-special of the season: Oklahoma 20, Notre Dame 13: The Sooners had a 9-1 season and beat Tennessee in the Orange Bowl. Look for them to intercept Terry Hanratty.

Louisiana State 14, Texas

A&M 10: The Aggies will test Texas for the Southwest title.

Penn State 22, Navy 14: The Nittany Lions are big, strong and plentiful, should repeat as Lambert Trophy champs.

Southern California 17, Minnesota 14: This one could have been played in the Rose Bowl last January.

Michigan State 19, Syracuse 7: The Spartans are bounding back after a frustrating year; Syracuse will miss Larry Csonka.

Clemson 28, Wake Forest 13: The Tigers have most of their defensive bulges back in uniform.

UCLA 23, Pittsburgh 7: The rebuilding program at Pitt is nearing fruition, but this is too big an opening bite.

California 20, Michigan 14: The Golden Bears pick up momentum from their good 1967 finish.

Florida 17, Air Force 7: The Gators are agog over a 220-pound line whacker named Larry Smith.

Titusville Makes Bid For Section II Crown

By DAVID PIRILLO

This year, with the Section II race up for grabs, the Titusville Rockets make a strong bid for honors.

Doing the bidding for the Rockets is a capable caller—Gene McNamara, a two-year letter winner at the quarter-back spot. His job is to lead the talent-rich Brown and Gold to their first Section crown since 1957. Last year, their only loss in conference clashes was to the Knights of Franklin. The overall record of the Rockets was a very respectable 6-2.

Coach Buck Crabb returns to the head mentor's job for his second year. With him he brings along eight returning lettermen, all of whom are seniors. He also has five more seniors on the starting squads and all eleven of his offensive performers are in their final year.

Titusville's mentor figures the team that gets the breaks will win it. He has listed Corry, Franklin, Warren and his club in a race to the wire for the top slot, while Meadowville and Oil City fight it out for the cellar-dwellers.

He looks for the league to be very well balanced. Another claim of his is that the conference will have four of the best signal-callers to ever play in the area. They are "Bey" Lawrence of Corry, Warren's Eddie O'Neill and his own incomparable McNamara.

Crabb lists his strong points as a torrid passing game and a capable running game. He points to his experienced pass receivers, Jim Romanisyn, (all-section first team in 1967) and converted end, Bob Putnam. He also makes note of his lack of experience in the line and overall depth isn't bountiful.

Titusville may lack in depth and experience on the forward wall, but certainly not beef. The front-four go a hefty 198 lb. coverage and are headed by Cliff Armstrong at right tackle, who weighs-in at a mere 250 pounds and stands six-foot-plus.

Sam Eakin, a six-foot one-inch, 180-pounder, returns at

BoSox Shutout Orioles

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox, held hitless for six innings by Roger Nelson, erupted for three runs in the seventh Wednesday and defeated the Baltimore Orioles 4-0.

Mike Andrews' leadoff single broke up the no-hitter. Carl Yastrzemski walked and Ken Harrelson singled to fill the bases. Reggie Smith grounded a two-run single to right to finish Nelson, and another run scored as reliever Pete Richert walked. Joe Foy with the bases loaded, Smith knocked in an eighth-inning run with a sacrifice fly.

Nelson, 3-2, gave up a leadoff walk to Luis Alvarado in the first inning and then got 18 men in a row, 13 of them on strikes.

Angels-Twins Split 4-3

MINNEAPOLIS, ST. PAUL (AP) — Jim Fregosi tripled home two first-inning runs, then got California an insurance run with some daring base running in the seventh, leading the Angels to a 4-3 victory over Minnesota and a split in a doubleheader Wednesday.

Card's Washburn Fires Another No-Hitter In SF

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ray Washburn of the St. Louis Cardinals pitched a no-hitter Wednesday, stifling the San Francisco Giants 2-0 and helped write major league history with the second masterpiece in as many days at Candlestick Park.

Gaylord Perry of the Giants had no-hit the Cardinals less than 24 hours earlier at Candlestick and it was the first time two no-hitters were pitched in successive games in one ball park.

Washburn, a sturdily-built 30-year-old right-hander, struck out eight and allowed five runners, all of them on walks.

He was in complete control and pitched his way out of his only jam in the seventh inning by getting Jim Hart on a bounce and striking out Dick Dietz.

Washburn, whose record is 13-7, had the Giants beating the ball into the ground. Only Hal Lanier, who filed to Lou Brock opening the sixth inning, got the ball into the outfield until the ninth.

He walked Willie Mays in the first with two out but retired Willie McCovey on a grounder.

In the second, Dietz walked and was erased on an inning ending double play.

Then Washburn sailed through the Giants' batting order, retiring 12 straight batters until Ron Hunt walked to open the Giants' seventh.

Cardinals Take Ticket Orders

ST. LOUIS — Ticket orders for the World Series are now being accepted by the St. Louis Cardinals.

The duets will be sold in four-ticket blocks, with each block containing two tickets to two games. Games one and seven, and games two and six will be sold in the blocks, thereby ensuring each purchaser the opportunity to see at least one game.

Cost of the blocks is $33 apiece. Orders must not be postmarked prior to Friday, Sept. 20. Checks must be enclosed with the order, as well as a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The Series is scheduled to start Wednesday, Oct. 2, in St. Louis.

Redskins Come Alive

WASHINGTON (AP) — Out of the dumping ground for the discontented, the Washington Redskins are building a renaissance season.

The Redskins have harvested the angry, the dissatisfied and the unwanted from the rosters of rival National Football League teams to add a half dozen established veterans, three of them former Pro Bowl selections.

Guard John Wooten, from the Cleveland Browns, and corner back Pat Fischer, from the St. Louis Cardinals, played stand-out roles in Washington's opening 38-28 upset over Chicago Sunday.

Tackle Walter Rock, from San Francisco, and linebacker Mike Morgan, from Philadelphia, are expected to break into the regular line-up this weekend against New Orleans.

The Redskins signed Wooten, a Negro community leader in Cleveland and one of the NFL's top guards, after he was turned loose by the Browns in a dispute over a golf outing to which no Negro players had been invited.

Mays struck out but McCovey walked. Both runners advanced on Hart's ground ball and then Dietz struck out, ending the threat.

In the eighth, Dave Marshall, pinch hitting with two out, drew a walk but Bobby Bonds fouled out.

Ray Washburn

In the ninth, Washburn got Ron Hunt on a bounce to second baseman Phil Cagillano, Mays on a grounder to third baseman Mike Shannon, and McCovey on a soft liner to Curt Flood — only the second ball hit to the outfield.

Washburn was locked in a scoreless duel with Bob Bolin until the seventh when the Cards got him the only run he needed.

Orlando Cepeda singled with one out, went to second on Edwards' ground ball and scored on Shannon's double.

In the eighth, St. Louis scored again. Dick Schofield opened

Penguins Sign Trio

BRANTFORD, Ont. (AP) — The Pittsburgh Penguins said Wednesday that Keith McCreary, Bob Dillabough and Val Fonteyne have signed contracts with the National Hockey League club.

The Penguins also said that Dunc McCallum suffered a hair-line ankle fracture and will miss one week of practice.

Good Seats Available At Y'ville

Youngsville and Sheffield football fans will have 1,000 seats to split between them for Saturday's intra-county high school game.

A new starting time — 1:00 p. m. — has been announced by Youngsville principal Felix Matthews. The principal reports that tickets will go on sale at 12:15 p. m. for the general public.

Student duets will sell for 50 cents apiece, while the adults will be tabbed $1.00. All seats are general admission.

A substantial parking area at the school, plus adequate on-street parking nearby, is deemed adequate to accommodate the drivers among the fans. Police supervision will be in force for traffic to and from the contest.

Ernest Koob no-hit the White Sox 1-0 on May 5 and then Robert Groom repeated the feat, winning 3-0 in the second game of a May 6 doubleheader.

Tickets Available For Dragon Clash

Warren fans planning on watching the Dragons in their Friday night clash with Titusville should have no trouble finding seats in that town's Carter Field, according to Rocket school officials.

Parking, however, may be a problem. The stone-walled structure has no adjacent off-street lots, and most fans will be forced to content themselves with an on-street spot and a short walk to the gate.

Student tickets, at 50 cents apiece, are now on sale at Warren Area High School. Adult general admission seats sell for $1.00 at the gate, while reserved duets — stretching between the 30 yard markers — will go for $1.75 apiece.

Starting time for the contest is slated for 8:15 p. m., with tickets going on sale at the gate at 6:30 p. m.

Cincinnati's Stofa Sticks Denver With A Drubbing

NEW YORK (AP) — It's as if John Stofa had bought one of those $1.98 Denver Bronco bobble-head dolls and stuck pins in it all week. After all, the Broncos had done enough damage to Stofa in the past year.

But no matter what he did beforehand, the Cincinnati quarterback punctured holes in Denver's defense Sunday and sparked the Bengals to a 24-10 victory in their second game.

It was the earliest regular season victory for an American Football League expansion club, and it brought Paul Brown his first triumph after a five-year sabbatical from coaching.

It also brought Stofa The Associated Press' award as AFL offensive player of the week Tuesday.

After languishing in minor league football for nearly three years, Stofa won a starting job with the Miami Dolphins last season. Then in the opener, against Denver, he suffered a broken right leg.

Traded to the Bengals this year, Stofa faced the Broncos in the second exhibition game, and this time he strained ligaments in his left knee.

RUSSELL BAKER

The Humphrey (Nixon) (Wallace) Administration

WASHINGTON — The presidential campaign is now sufficiently advanced to give us all an idea about what sort of President each of the three leading candidates will be. For example, let us peek in at the White House on Jan. 21, 1970. The phone is ringing on the President's desk. He lifts it. "This is the President speaking. . . oh, it's you, Lyndon. I mean it's you, Mister President, sir. This is Hubert, Mr. Baker

President. It's nice of you to call. . . yes, it does get lonely here in the White House sometimes. . . "You hear I've been changing things around up here? . . . I don't know where you heard that, Mr. President. . . you heard I changed the push buttons at the President's seat at the cabinet table? Well, I did have them take out the button that said 'Fresca.' Since you've gone there's no demand at all anymore for Fresca so I had it replaced with a button that says 'Nehi.' I didn't think you'd mind. You know how I like Nehi. . . "Thank you, Mr. President. I knew you'd understand. . . my state of the union message? . . . I'm terribly sorry you feel that way. . . I see, I see. . . it won't do? . . . it just won't do at all? . . . Is there anything in particular I ought to abandon? . . . "I have to abandon the new position on Vietnam? . . . well, of course I can, but it's going to make me look pretty foolish. . . yes, of course I've looked pretty foolish before. What else? . . . you don't like any of it, I see. . . well, I don't really see how I can repudiate the whole program this afternoon. . . next weekend's soon enough? That's swell. . . "Of course I can come down to the ranch. . . not next Wednesday. DeGaulle's coming to the White House Wednesday. . . well, if you put it that way. . . you're perfectly right. Of course de Gaulle would rather see you than me. I'll bring him. Goodbye, Mr. President."

On the other hand, Richard Nixon may be elected. The year is 1971. President Nixon and the First Lady are eating alone in the state dining room. Because of the vastness of the table Mrs. Nixon has to shout from her end to be heard at the other.

"Why don't we ever have any guests in, Dick, so I don't have to conduct all my dinner conversation in a shout?"

"You know perfectly well why I don't want any guests in!"

"Shout louder, dear. I can't hear you."

"I said I don't want any guests in because they'll start asking me what my positions are on public issues, and I don't want to say anything that might leak out and endanger national unity."

"There's some talk in the kitchen," Mrs. Nixon shouts, "that you're going to take a position on an important issue next month. What issue are you thinking of taking a position on?"

"I do not think it would be helpful at this time to discuss issues that might require a presidential position, Pat."

"I'm sorry for trying to discuss it, Dick."

"I can't hear you, darling."

"I shouted I'm sorry."

Silence falls on the table. It is broken at last by Mrs. Nixon's shout. "What kind of ice cream do you want for dessert?"

The President shows no irritation. "I have a commission studying the question of what kind of ice cream I like. For me to make a statement on the issue at this time might seriously prejudice and even undermine their deliberations."

Then, of course, there is the possibility of a George Wallace presidency. The year is 1972. Two drivers are talking in the White House garage. "The President sure drove out of here like something big was up."

"He heard there are some hippies lying down in the street in Baltimore, and he wants to get over there and run over them with his car."

"How many hippies has he run over with his car since the inauguration?"

"Don't know, lost count. But I can tell you how many bureaucrats' briefcases he's thrown in the Potomac the last three years—217,683. Every once in awhile his arm gets sore, and he lets me throw a few in."

"He's slowing down though, he hasn't run a pseudo-intellectual out of Washington all week."

"Doctor's orders. He ran two all the way to Philadelphia week before last, and he was stiff as a board for the next three days."

Penn State Takes Action To Counter Housing Shortage

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP)— Pennsylvania State University took another step Wednesday to counter the housing shortage threatening students with a lack of permanent quarters.

Meanwhile, three tents set up Tuesday night on the university lawn to dramatize the scarcity remained in place Wednesday. The small group of occupants had dispersed, however, apparently going about their day's business.

The university announced it was making an area adjacent to the campus ice skating rink available to students who cared to set up their personal trailers or tents as temporary housing quarters.

The location would be equipped with necessary sanitary facilities, the university said.

At the same time, it reminded students without a place to stay that temporary beds were available on a day-to-day basis at the Housing Assignment office, which is to remain open until midnight daily throughout the emergency.

The university said approximately 1,000 students were without permanent housing, either in campus dormitories or in the borough of State College, which adjoins the campus.

Another 800 had been accommodated through the Fall term, at least, by the conversion of single rooms in the 13,000-man dormitories to doubles.

The Town Independent Men's Council, meanwhile, has been canvassing the area for permanent quarters in State College or Bellefonte, 12 miles away.

The Council reported that as of Tuesday night they had more accommodations available than applicants.

The university expects to have 1,700 more students on the main campus this year than last when the 25,150-member student body reports for classes Monday.

Art Students Sketch Business Area

KANE—Seven benches intended for girl-watching, curb sitters and weary shoppers were put to a new use Tuesday in the Fraley st., business section.

Twelve students of the Kane Area High School art class made themselves comfortable on the benches and sketched or painted impressions of the borough's retail shops.

The benches were placed in the downtown section at the request of newly-elected Mayor Edgar James, who told borough council they would serve to keep the teenagers off curbs.

Urban Renewal Project Includes Units for Elderly

CORRY -- Four of five members of Corry City Council voted Monday night to include 30 units of housing for the elderly in the city's Fourth Ward urban renewal project. The one dissenting vote was cast by Councilman, Clare Capwell, who has questioned the need for 30 units.

The housing proposal for the 30 units exceeds by 10 the original plan for residential construction in the renewal area. During planning and survey operations for the Fourth Ward project the space which was considered the maximum for this type of renewal was set at 20 units.

During Monday's meeting, David Johnson, city engineer administrator, in a discussion prior to council's vote, told members that 30 units would take a quarter of the acreage in the four block area which is to undergo renewal. This gave rise to a measure of uncertainty among councilmen who feared any such change in project plans might jeopardize federal approval of the project funds.

Marvin McHale, a member of the City Housing Authority, present for the meeting, said, however, that council may not have another chance for some time to get federal funds because of the current status of available funds.

The question of need was answered by McHale when he explained to council the housing authority had originally planned for 80 units of elderly housing based on surveys which fully supported the need in the city.

NEW WAY OF FISHING
WALVIS BAY, South West Africa (AP) — Hennie Venter was swimming at the beach when a 20-pound steenbras, a fish found locally, attacked him in water about six feet deep. Venter punched and dazed the fish, dragged it on the beach and presented it to the local hotel where it fed the full guest quota.

The dragonfly's streamlined body and two pairs of wings, which may beat 20 or 30 times a second, give it unusual flying speed and agility.

Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE: I've always wished that you were my next-door neighbor so we could talk about your short cuts and bargains. I have no one around who appreciates a good bargain. I guess if I had a million dollars I would still cut corners.

I was so tickled over finding something free that I had to write and tell you.

I have made homemade doughnuts for years for my brood and they really enjoy them, but I had just never spurged on a cutter.

Well, today, the makers of my spray starch gave me one! The plastic cap to the can had an inner ring which is exactly the way a doughnut cutter is made.

I trimmed the outer edge even with the inner edge so they would be the same height. Presto, a perfect doughnut cutter. And all for free, too.

Your Neighbor at Heart

They're the best kind. Just like your sweet words.

That's a peach of a hint and it works like a gem.

Have one of those doughnuts and a cup of coffee for me next time, shug.

Love, Heloise

DEAR HELOISE: If you find you're out of air freshener, just put a little toilet water or cologne in a pan of water. Set it on the stove and bring to a boil. Instant air freshener!

H R C.

DEAR HELOISE: Have you ever sprayed your hair with one of the foamy bathroom cleaners instead of hair spray?

I advise women to read labels before squinting stuff. Lots of it is plenty dangerous.

And

Sure glad it wasn't an oven cleaner, pal. You might have ended up with no hair at all. And I wouldn't consider that funny. Specially with the price of wigs.

I laughed at your letter, but must hasten to CAUTION everyone to be extremely careful and not get any of this fizz canned stuff in your eyes. And don't forget: Always call your local poison control center or the emergency room at a hospital when something like this happens.

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE: When I buy whipping cream, I often use only a part of the carton.

So I whip it all and then put what I don't use in a plastic jar and freeze it.

I find it is much better to whip it before freezing.

Amelia Walston

DEAR HELOISE: Do you know of any useful or artistic ideas for using plastic detergent bottles?

I have stored away a big box full and was just wondering what could be done with them. Hate to throw them away. Got any suggestions?

K. S. R.

Come on folks, let's be a pal to our friend. Just write to Heloise in care of this paper. Sure would love to hear from you all.

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE: I read about using the spiked bill spindle for bobbins, but I store my extra bobbins in a tall, effervescent tablet bottle.

I cut off a plastic knitting needle so it would fit in the bottle and pushed the bobbins on it. They fit nice and snug.

Then I just slid the needle and bobbins into the bottle and screwed on the cap.

The thread stays clean and I can look through the bottle to see what colored thread I have on each bobbin.

Betty Broadbent

DEAR HELOISE: One of my neighbors just showed me a good way to wash rough textured walls without ruining fifteen knuckles, three fingernails, two sponges and four bath towels.

I made up a big plastic wastebasket of my favorite cleaning solution, dipped an inexpensive paint roller in it and started "painting" from the bottom to the top. Then I rolled back and forth with it, up and down and crosswise, one area at a time.

In another wastebasket, I put some warm, clean water and a heavy, old terrycloth bath towel. After wringing the towel out thoroughly, I just wiped away. For the first time in my life I don't have streaks.

Justice Dept. Says State Third In Nation in Organized Crime

HARRISBURG (AP) — By Atty. Gen. William C. Sennett's own accounting, organized crime has a highly lucrative and fulltime operation going for it in Pennsylvania — as it does elsewhere in the nation.

According to information compiled by the Justice Department within the past year from federal, state and local sources, there are 141 members of the infamous crime organization, La Cosa Nostra, operating in the state, Sennett said.

Of La Cosa Nostra's 24 feudal families operating throughout the United States, five have their tentacles in the Commonwealth.

And by Sennett's private report to the Judiciary Committee of the state Senate:

"Pennsylvania has been identified by the U. S. Department of Justice as the third most critical area in the country requiring a sustained counter-attack on organized crime."

This was the picture outlined by the attorney general to the judiciary panel last July 9 and reviewed substantially in a later appearance before the House Democratic minority caucus.

Sennett's aim in both presentations was to drum up support for a Shafer administration legislative package he said was designed to provide state government with the "statutory tools" to launch the counter-attack on crime called for by the U. S. Justice Department.

But in the forensics of an election year, he finds much of what he had to say being thrown back at him by the House Democrats in the form of a campaign position paper entitled "Law and Order."

The paper, distributed to the party's candidates for the state House, is designed to challenge the effectiveness of the Republican Shafer and Scranton administrations in dealing with organized crime these last six years.

In reviewing the scope of organized crime's activities in Pennsylvania, Sennett called gambling its most lucrative activity with a take of almost $2 billion a year in a variety of rackets such as:

Crap games — One game raided by the FBI in the early 1960's in Reading was a $100,000 affair run nine times a week with an employee payroll of $350,000.

Pinball machines — One tavern owner advised a legal authority that his profit from four machines in his establishment would be $10,000 per year.

Betting — Records confiscated in a State Police raid last May in Schuylkill County showed one bookie with a value of approximately $70,000 per day in horse bets. The same records showed that over $14,000 was funneled to the bookie last April 27 from the Harrisburg area alone.

Loan sharks — Records seized for the prosecution of loan sharks in Philadelphia revealed they had over $250,000 out in loans to some 300 individuals.

Henry S. Ruth, professor of law at the University of Pennsylvania and a member of the governor's Crime Commission, told a U. S. Senate committee last May that Philadelphia loan sharks would lend out anything

Robert O. Wilder, president and chairman, National Forge Co., has announced the formation of a new joint venture company, Industrial Materials Technology, Inc.

Noting that the technology of materials specification and design is rapidly changing, Wilder stated IMT has been organized as a research, development and consulting organization specializing in materials science and engineering with emphasis on advanced powder metallurgy, ceramics and dispersion strengthened alloys.

Temporary offices are now located at 127 Smith Place, Cambridge, Mass., 02138. A new facility, now under construction in Woburn, Mass., will be in operation prior to the end of the year.

Dr. Wilder, formerly manager of Metallurgy of Teledyne Materials Research Co., has been elected president of the new firm. He was educated in Zurich, Switzerland and completed post doctoral studies at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He has conducted research and written several papers on the development of high temperature materials powder metallurgy and high temperature deformation phenomena.

Dr. Wilder stated that IMT will have specific capabilities to conduct studies involving metallography, X-ray diffraction analysis, mechanical testing and electron microscopy. A large scale hot gas bonding facility will also be available for research or contract work.

According to Dr. Wilder, the board of directors of the new company includes himself, Robert O. Wilder, IMT chairman, Dr. Carl F. Floe, vice president, research administration, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Dr. Nicholas J. Grant, Professor of Metallurgy and Materials Science, MIT; Professor S. V. An organization meeting for the Russell Cub Pack is slated for 7 p.m. today (Thursday) in the fire hall. Unless a sufficient number of parents are in attendance, the scouting program may have to be dropped.

The Elizabeth H. Schulte will return to Erie no more. The German freighter sank in the Gulf of St. Lawrence at 5:30 p.m. last Thursday with no loss of life reported. The vessel struck a reef while returning to the Great Lakes from Europe. The Schulte, which opened Erie's 1968 shipping season when she docked there last April 20, returning again on May 4 and August 2, was to have docked in Erie later this week.

Robert L. Brightman, 27, of 417 E. 32nd st., Erie, arrested by Warren borough police in the past for his attempt to stage an armed robbery at Try-M Finance Co. here, on Monday pleaded innocent in Chautauqua County Court to two indictments by a grand jury charging criminal possession of a forged instrument in cashing in Dunkirk two checks, one $957.76 and the other for $675.

Elk County recorded 1,087 new voters during the registration period which ended Monday. Of this total, 550 were Democrats; 443 Republicans, 54 Independents; 23 Non-partisans; 3 American Independent and one Constitutional. McKean County registered 1,463 new voters; 895 Republicans, 496 Democrats and 72 Non-partisans.

No injury resulted Tuesday night from a one-car accident on Wetmore street in Kane, according to authorities. The driver, Stephen Markey, of 304 Baird st., Kane, told Patrolman William Osmer he was northbound and lost control of his car after halting for a stop sign. The vehicle struck a utility pole, causing $800 damage to the auto.

Warren General Hospital has requested the help of Warren County Chamber of Commerce in bringing additional doctors into the Warren area. The chamber is presently discussing methods of attracting qualified medical personnel to the area with Robert Kinney, Warren General Hospital administrator.

A budget of $12,908 to be used for various committee activities for the coming year was adopted by the county development committee at a meeting held Tuesday. The committee plans to update an industrial survey, taken 15 years ago, as one of their committee projects.

The county beautification committee met Wednesday to ascertain collection points for junked cars in the county. A survey of the number of junked cars in the county, taken by individual township, and two third complete, indicates there are presently 2,410 junked cars accumulated in the county. Arrangements for the disposal of these junked cars can be made with an out of state firm as soon as the survey is complete. Property to be used as collection points are already available.

The first meeting of Chamber of Commerce Parking Committee will be conducted at 10 a.m. Thursday (today) at Northwest Savings and Loan Hospitality Rooms. A slide presentation illustrating methods of controlling parking, traffic and transit will highlight the meeting.

Large Gathering of Reds Scheduled for Budapest

(C) N.Y. Times News Service
BUDAPEST — The largest gathering of Communist parties since the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia almost a month ago is scheduled for Budapest early next week.

Bringing together perhaps as many as 50 Communist parties, the meeting is technically in preparation for a larger Moscow conference later in the year. Last spring, the world conference was scheduled for Nov. 25.

News of next week's meeting came from sources close to the Hungarian government, though the conference has not yet been officially announced, and details were sparse.

There had been speculation that the Soviet Union would decide to postpone the November meeting until the climate in the world Communist movement was more favorable to Moscow. It was believed that the Soviet Union may have felt that to go ahead now with a meeting designed to strengthen faltering party unity could prove self-defeating in view of the derment in the parties as a result of the invasion.

The Soviet Communist party, which has recently been commending the "realistic approach" of the Czechoslovak leaders in solving their problems, has now apparently decided to pursue all efforts to try to bring the movement into harmony -- with tough persuasion if necessary.

The preparatory meeting will be watched as much for who does not come as who does.

Absentees from a similar preparatory session here in April included seven of the Communist parties that rule their own countries: China, Albania, North Vietnam, North Korea, Yugoslavia, Rumania and Cuba. There have been no indications that any of these Communist parties have changed their minds about the boycott, despite appeals from those organizing the world conference.

While the sessions will deal with the technicalities of the first such world meeting since 1960, observers expect some cautious soundings by the Soviet Union to determine the degree of unhappiness among the world parties over the invasion by the Soviet Union, Bulgaria, Hungary, East Germany and Poland.

Some western observers think that the Soviet Union next week may be prepared to remove political tensions by raising the possibility of setting a timetable for gradual troop withdrawals.

McCarthy Relaxes on Riviera; Openly Critical of Candidates

(C) N.Y. Times News Service
NICE—Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, on vacation on the French Riviera, stretched out in the sun in a cabana and joked about the two chief nominees for the Presidency of the United States, and he did not conceal his contempt for them.

"Nixon doesn't have wool. Humphrey has lots of wool but no war," the Minnesota Democrat said.

"So it winds up as too much fringe," said Bart Howard, a friend who is a songwriter. The senator liked that. He let out a little whoop of laughter.

"What's war? What's wool?" asked Howard Stein, president of the Dreyfus Fund, who was the finance manager of McCarthy's campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The senator replied that wool means the threads that are the filling in a woven fabric, and that the warp is the threads that extend lengthwise in the loom. He knows because he was inside a textile mill in Illinois during the campaign, he said.

McCarthy, who is visiting France with his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Stein, Howard, and Mrs. Don Edwards, wife of the California representative, was feeling frisky.

An outsider might have had the impression that the senator was a man without a single regret or a single worry. It is his manner to use humor even when he feels grief, to quip rather than to complain.

He does not look tired or drained after the nine months of campaigning that took him into 40 states and through seven primaries.

McCarthy would not say whether he will endorse Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey, the Democratic nominee, or will criticize both candidates publicly and advise his supporters to abstain from voting.

There was no doubt that he feels scorn for the lack of emotional restraint he sees in both men.

"The gift of tears is pretty much gone in religion—you see more of it in politicians these days," he said. "There are the politicians who cry straight. Others just well up but the tears never really come out. It's a great gift, that weeping."

There seemed to be no bitterness and no dwelling on the "ifs" as McCarthy and his friends in his cabana, discussed the campaign. Instead, there were private whimsical jokes on what he might have done had he been elected president.

He said, for example, that he never liked the title "secretary" for members of the President's cabinet. Why not, as the Greeks and Romans did, choose a woman to represent agriculture and give her the title, Goddess of the Plow?

Then his mood shifted again from gaiety to gravity.

"It's been pointed out that we are the first great nation whose military establishment is called the Department of Defense—and if you thought of yourself as being always on the defensive, there was no limit to what you can do," the senator said.

He wore faded blue swim trunks and there was a new blister on his foot, possibly acquired in a game of tennis he played.

"I would have created a Department of Offense to keep the Department of Defense busy," he said.

McCarthy would not say whether he would see President de Gaulle, or give his opinion of him or say if he would go to Paris. Instead, he flopped back on the mat and mumbled, more to himself than the others.

"I don't know—I am a kind of defender of his. I think we've over-reacted. Yes, I know you can't hear me. You're not supposed to."

He laughed when he was told that he mumbled at people.

"Just think, in the White House, we could have had weekly mumbles in the Blue Room or, instead of press confer-

GOP May Win 40 Additional House Seats

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Gerald R. Ford, House Republican leader, renewed Wednesday his prediction the GOP will pick up at least 40 additional House seats in the November election.

House Speaker John W. McCormack countered with talk of a Democratic gain.

Republicans need a net gain of at least 31 seats to win control of the House in the new Congress.

Predicting a 40-seat gain, Ford said: "If the trends continue—and with the effective campaign of Dick Nixon—we could have an election that will produce substantially more."

McCormack, commenting on Ford's news conference prediction, said Republicans make claims every two years that they will capture the House.

"I have every confidence," McCormack said, "that the people of the United States will not only want to keep the Democratic majority in the House but will increase it by 15 to 20 members."

Ford spoke out after the first of a series of 11 conferences his party's leaders have scheduled with GOP congressional candidates for a discussion of campaign issues. Candidates from Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia attended the initial meeting.

Rep. Bob Wilson of California, chairman of the GOP congressional committee, stressed a second Republican goal—capture of a majority in each of 26 state delegations in the House, to assure election of a Republican president in case the electoral college vote is inconclusive.

Wilson said approximately $1 million will be spent on campaigns of Republican candidates trying to unseat Democratic incumbents. Another $1 million, he said, will go to help Republican incumbents.
